TRIBUTE

Of Love and Respect For Mrs. Frederick.

Ora Yeager's Useful Life—School Closes on Account of Scarlet Fever—Dry Ridge News.

Dry Ridge, Nov. 11—Even though it be a week late, I want to offer my deepest sympathy to the husband, daughter and sons of the late Mrs. Emma Carrithers Frederick. And her old neighbors feel that we, too, have sustained a loss in her death. Living almost within the shadow of her girlhood home, remembering her as a beautiful, good, laughter-loving girl, knowing her as an attractive, thoughtful, unusually kind woman, the thought will come, 'why couldn't she have been spared for many years yet to her family and friends? Since her death I heard a lady say she had never known any one to take as much pleasure in helping and accommodating others, and I was told that when her brother went to see her shortly before her death, she inquired about all her old friends here. Always she had a smile as bright and words as kind for the poorest as for the richest of her friends, and on every side I hear words of praise for her life and profound regret at her death.

It will be long before we get over the shock of Ora Yeager's death, which, under the circumstances, may have been for the best. Nevertheless, his wife and children have all the love and sympathy we can give them, and it would be well if we could turn our minds from his sad death to his many, upright, honest life. So well I remember seeing him morning after morning going early to school, where he behaved a little better, studied a little harder, recited a little more eagerly, played with a little more spirit than any one there, although his scholastic record was a lot of boys and girls. And at home he worked so well and so willingly that always he was greeted by the same grateful smile of welcome from his grandmother whenever he entered the room, that it is a pleasure now to recall it. Then later he was such a good kind husband and father, and one summer he made us such a fine Sunday-school superintendent here at our school home that we were surely made the world better by living and leaving these memories.

Our school is closed this week on account of little Ruth Snyder having the scarlet fever, and as she was taken sick at school it was feared other pupils might have contracted the disease. However, no cases have developed as yet, and we sincerely hope none will. We are sorry, indeed to have our school, which was progressing so nicely, interrupted by this dread disease.

Miss Mattie Reid, of Bowling Green, came up to Louisville recently to see Little Women played and invited her sister, Mrs. G. B. Cartwright, Mrs. Walter Casey and daughter, Lois, Mr. M. G. Boston, wife and daughter, to accompany her to enjoy this sweetest of all stories for girls.

Mrs. Bemis Shaker spent Saturday with her parents who also entertained her sister, Mrs. Mary Chowning, of Louisville.

J. R. Carrithers and wife, John Carrithers and wife, Burdine Bridwell and wife, and Miss Annie Reid and Mr. Roy Reid attended Mrs. Frederick's funeral and burial.

Mr. M. G. Boston, wife and daughter made a trip to Louisville recently to visit the families of W. W. Reid, Walter Casey and Theo. Hardman, who had a regular family reunion on Sunday in their home, having Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Cartwright, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Cartwright and little daughter, Ruth, Miss Mattie Reid, Mr. Walter Casey, wife and daughter to meet them.

Miss Mayne Carrithers, of near Mt. Washington, entertained delightfully Sunday before last in honor of Mr. Bemis Shaker and wife. Quite a number of young folks were there.

Mrs. J. R. Carrithers spent a few days of last week with her son, John, and his wife.

Mrs. Burdine Bridwell and daughter spent Saturday and Sunday in Jeffersontown with Mrs. Annie McKinley.

Mrs. Ervin Paris recently entertained as all day guests Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Charley Davis, of Jeffersontown, Mrs. Lee Harris, Mrs. Hickman Harris and Mrs. Bob Reid and little daughters.

Miss Sarah Mills, of Fern Valley, is spending a few days with Miss Ethel Mills, of Seatonville.

Sorry indeed to hear that the beautiful wife of the Rev. Jorgenson, our preacher at Cedar Springs, is very ill with typhoid fever.

Mr. Force Jean and family entertained in a delightful manner at dinner yesterday, a number of friends who accompanied them home from church. Those present were Mr. Myer Jean, Mr. Ernest Wigginton and family, Miss Annie Reid, Roy Beard Hardman, Mr. Mitchell Bridwell and family, Mr. Roy Reid, wife and little son and M. G. Boston and family. We certainly enjoyed their hospitality and regretted the day was not as long as the twenty-first of June.

Dies in Alamogordo, N. M.

The funeral of Thos. J. Bell took place at Pennsylvania Road cemetery Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Mr. Bell, who has been an invalid for the past year, was taken to New Mexico the twelfth of August by Dr. W. K. Kirk, hoping the climate would benefit him. He wrote home every week saying he was doing fine and was delighted with the country. Mr. Bell's mother and father died when he was but three years old. He with his two sisters, Misses Niva and Virginia Bell, made their home with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Brown, until the last few years when he became connected with the circulating department of the Louisville Times. He was just 29 years old and it seemed to us, who see through a glass darkly, hard for one so young to be cut down. He was a member of the Highland Church of Christ and was a beautiful Christian character. The high esteem which he was held by the Highland people was shown by the memorial services held by the Highland church on Sunday evening, conducted by Rev. Alex. Lipcom.

The long weary hours of waiting for his body to reach here from New Mexico was indeed a trial to his two sisters and relatives, but:

"My loss, my sorrow, I shall have so much to see together by and by. I do believe that just that same sweet father is waiting in the place where we shall meet. I am counted worthy in that by and by I do believe that God will give a sweet tear stained, saddened eyes. And that this his heaven will be most glad, most tired with joy for you and me. As we have suffered much."

Dies After Illness.

Augustine Shelburne, Jr., son of Augustine Shelburne, of Jeffersontown, passed away last Friday morning at 9:15 o'clock, after an illness of about three years from a complication of diseases. He came here with his parents about a year since from Louisville, but was born and reared in Bloomfield, Ky. He was a graduate of the Louisville Boys High School and a bright young man. He was 21 years of age and before his illness contemplated entering the medical profession. He was a member of the Presbyterian church and a consistent Christian. Besides his parents he is survived by a brother, J. Edward Shelburne, of Shelbyville. The funeral services were conducted at the residence in Jeffersontown Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock by the deceased's uncle, Rev. E. C. Trimble, assisted by Rev. M. C. Chord, of Louisville. The burial took place at Bloomfield, in Nelson county, where services were conducted at the grave by Rev. Trimble and Rev. Sanders. He came here with many friends here and at Bloomfield expressed great sorrow and sympathy to the bereaved parents in their sad loss.

POULTRY SHOW

At Armory December 23-28, 1912.

Louisville To Have National Poultry Exhibition To Equal Chicago, New York and Boston.

There are many reasons why you should exhibit your birds at the Great Armory Poultry Show in Louisville, Ky., December 23-28, 1912, and there are no reasons why you should not. In the first place, the Great Armory Poultry Show is a National Show, and a winning at this show will be worth as much to the breeder as any of the big shows of the North and East. The Louisville Show is not a money making enterprise. Every dollar made by the Association, after all the legitimate expenses of the show are paid, goes back into the next annual exhibit.

The men back of the Louisville Show are among the most prominent breeders in the country and are financially able to promote a show of this character. Every obligation of the Great Armory Show, which is under the control of the South Central Poultry Association, will be met promptly and in full.

The management realize the importance of the poultry industry to the people of the great Central and Southern section of the country and it is their purpose to put on in Louisville, each year, an educational poultry exhibition second to none in the world. They are working in the interest of the poultry interest in general, and to advance and develop the great poultry industry in every way possible, and there is no better agency for bringing to the attention of the people the advantages of poultry raising than through the poultry show. The poultry show today is responsible for the $900,000,000 poultry industry that exists today.

There is no better location in America today for a great National Poultry event each year, than the city of Louisville, Ky. The Great Armory Building situated in the very center of the city, a city of nearly one quarter of a million people, is not only the largest and best show rooms in the country, but the lighting and ventilating facilities are unequalled. Louisville is situated in the very center of the great Central Poultry Section, the section of the Union that is making more rapid improvement in the development of the poultry industry than any other section of any country on the face of the globe, a country where thousands upon thousands of people are engaging in the business and a well to do class of people who have the money to purchase good poultry and eggs. Louisville is the gateway to the South. It is practically the door to the great southern poultry field, and as a market place for good poultry it is doubtful if there is another show in America that can surpass the great Louisville Show.

The great Armory Show in Louisville in December will be patronized by breeders from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky and all of the Southern States. The best birds on the American Continent will be seen at the great Louisville Show. Even the far Western States will have birds on exhibition at Louisville in December.

There is no reason why the Great Armory Show should not become the greatest and grandest Poultry Exhibition in the world. Louisville is within easy reach of nearly all the States, birds being able to reach Louisville overnight from most of them, which is a great advantage to the exhibitor, as it does not keep the birds cooped up in shipping cages for any length of time, and puts them in the show room in the best possible condition. Louisville is wide awake to the poultry proposition. The commercial organizations, the business men and the people in general realize the importance of the industry and are doing their part to make the Great Armory Show a grand success. The enterprising newspapers of the city of Louisville are behind the movement and can be counted on for anything to promote and develop the industry.

It is safe to predict that the breeders of the South and Central States are going to set a pace at the Great Armory Show in Louisville in December that the other large exhibitions of the country had better watch closely. Premium list now ready. Address John A. Murkin, Secy-Treas., Nashville, Tenn.—Farmers Home Journal.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Shelburne beg to acknowledge with grateful appreciation the generous expressions of sympathy extended in the loss of their son, Augustine. Especially do we appreciate the many kindnesses shown him in his affliction by the citizens of the town and community.

BEARGRASS

Church May Be Moved to Shelby Pike.

Work Begun on New Shelby Line.

Progress at St. Matthews. A. B. C. Letter.

St. Matthews, Nov. 11—This beautiful "Indian summer" weather has brought out the best there is in us every way; sweetened our tempers, made us more sociable, and helped us wonderfully through the ordeal of housecleaning. Visiting and visitors is the order of the day among the "Saints."

The Ladies Aid of the Beargrass church met last Tuesday with Mrs. Covington Herr and were entertained in a royal manner. The beautiful work of the ladies during this strenuous year was displayed. All is now ready for the bazaar to be on sale at Miss Maud Dillon's military apartment on Fourth avenue Nov. 22 and 23, 1912. Eye hath not seen more beautifully dressed dolls or more exquisite embroidery on pillow cases, towels, dillies, etc. Come, everybody, and buy your Christmas presents here at reasonable prices.

Miss Ophelia Selph, from Lagrange, and Miss Alice W. Mount, from Harolds Creek, are visiting Mrs. Norborne Hardin this week.

E. H. Mullins, from Mt. Vernon, and J. W. Ingelman, from Detroit Michigan, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rudy for a few days. Mr. Ingelman formerly lived in this vicinity, and was heartily welcomed by his friends.

I had the pleasure of visiting the school in St. Matthews last week and found the half had never been told of the progress of these children and the wonderful methods of these three teachers in developing the minds of our little folks. Their map drawings and portraying products of each state would do credit to statesmen, and we make our best bow to these worthy instructors.

There is a movement on foot at present to move Beargrass church to the Shelby pike, as all its members can then take advantage of the electric car lines to attend church. The church is situated in an out of the way place for many of its members who have no conveyances, yet the lot would make ideal residence sites. As times and people change, churches must change their locations, also, to keep in touch with the people.

Grading has begun on the new Shelby line above St. Matthews and we feel very queer, and actually find ourselves dodging the cars, as our fences are removed and it seems as if each car will mount the porch. We will, of course, get used to this city life, but the "hill billy" feeling must crop out for awhile.

The department store at St. Matthews is progressing rapidly, and building lots are being sold almost daily. We have two efficient real estate agents on the alert for purchasers—Mr. R. O. Dorsey and Mr. N. O. Rudy, young in the cause, but good at anything they attempt. Consequently we are moving forward with them at the helm. A. B. C.

The opportunity came sooner than I thought, for the next day being damp and chilly, we remained indoors, Bud alone being forced to face the rain. Mrs. Turpin had gone into the kitchen to get warm, she said, for the sitting room was damp and bad for rheumatism. I was only waiting for the colonel to go for his afternoon nap to speak what was in my mind to Miss Ellen. Presently she looked up from a book she was reading and said:

"Father, there was another of those letters copied in the Augusta press yesterday."

As I heard her words my heart seemed to cease pulsation. I had never known that they had spoken of me, and that they had not spoken of them before, probably because they did not want me to see them. My face grew scarlet, and I was about to say that the room was gloomy and dark.

"Yes, Ellen," he said, "even some of our own people laugh at us when they get rich, so we can't expect our enemies to do less. Have you got the paper, my dear? I had to laugh over that last description of what we had come to. It was very, very funny."

"Funny! Oh, father, to think that you can see anything funny in such misery as is depicted! The writer does not see with the eyes of a gentleman or else he is blinded by prejudice or prosperity. How could I possibly be such a man! I did not want you to see this last letter, father, so I burnt the paper. It was too true, too true!" she cried, and I saw her eyes fill with tears.

She laid her book aside and went to the window to mend a rent in the lace curtain, but I thought more to hide her feelings from us. The writer does not see with the eyes of a gentleman. With that one sentence she had shattered to pieces every argument I had used in my protest. I was in the room. She had not made use of any choice rhetoric, such as I had used to describe her, nor did she study the effect of her words. It was as if a natural sentence, spoken from the heart, she seemed to paint me as I was or as she would always think of me after this. I realized how far my ambition had carried me and how low my literary instincts, as I had thought them then, had sunk me. In the room I saw myself as others would see me, and in my remorse I believed that I had sacrificed her for some temporary advantage. I had not understood, forgetting that her scale of honor and truth was as far above mine as heaven is above earth. In the silence that followed I suffered a lifetime of ordinary humiliation. To be unknown and yet pronounced was like being alone with my profession. My identity should be hid no longer, and I resolved to tell her that it was I who had dejected. As low as I was in the moment, I was not so low as to take her hand until she had confessed all. The past month rose before me, and I asked myself if I was indeed a gentleman measured from their standpoint. At any rate, I could not remain one and be silent.

The colonel crossed the room and passed into the hall. I got up and stood leaning on the back of the chair in which I had been sitting.

"Miss Ellen," I said, "I have something important to say to you. It is not what you think, for a pained expression came into her face. 'It is a confession I have to make.'"

"Yes, Mr. Palmer," she said and turned from the window to face me. The sun had come from behind a bank of clouds and crimsoned the checkered panes of glass, and her hair, catching the rays that filtered through them, framed her in a halo and to me gave her the appearance of a saint. Her face was pale, and her long eyelashes were fringed with tears.

"Miss Ellen," I said softly, "it was I who wrote those letters."

For a moment she did not speak, and when she did her voice seemed passionate.

"Then it was you, after all," was what she said. "I had refused to entertain the thought until you yourself confessed it. Even now it seems too horrible to believe. And I stopped speaking to my best friend merely because she had partially suggested that it might be you." She said this more to herself than to me.

"Why did you not tell this to me before?" I said, "and I would have explained."

"Why did I not tell you?" she asked, her voice breaking with anguish. "The cause I thought you were a gentleman and you were our guest. It would have been an insult to have mentioned it. Such a suggestion would have been a reflection on him you ridiculed and on me, whom you would have made believe you loved had you dared to speak the lie upon your lips."

"Love you?" I cried, "I would die for you!"

"It is the only way you could ever prove it now," she said, "oh, the scorn, the scorn! You had only leveled your ridicule at me alone! But father, poor old father! I am glad he will not see that last letter. He would hardly think that one funny."

She looked at me, and her eyes suddenly seemed to blaze with scorn and contempt.

"Yes, I see it all now, and the wonder is I did not see it before. It was he whom you described as a broken down aristocrat who dominated on politics and wrote pieces to the paper telling the president how to run the government. It was mother who dressed in worn velvet gowns and sat in state at the dinner her daughter had cooked, and it was I who cooked the dinners and played sonatas and nocturnes for the amusement of our guests. God, why did I not see you as you were? Yes, and these are the hands," she cried in anguish and scorn, holding them toward me that I might see them, "that have cooked your meals for the past four weeks, and these are the same hands that played for you while you smoked your pipe and heard father discuss on politics! How poor and miserable we must have seemed to you! All that I could have forgiven, but that you should have lied with your kisses. They will burn deep here," she said, pointing to her fingers, "long after your ingratitude has been forgotten."

"Ellen, for God's sake have pity!" I cried. "I have laughed at your poverty as if it were my own. I am rich—I never told this to you before—and I felt that the only use of my wealth in the future would be to relieve the burdens of those you love. This night—nay, this very afternoon—I was going to ask you to be my wife, from which moment your father, mother and brother would have been mine also. It was this very poverty and the fortitude with which you bore it that have made me love you. After you spoke this afternoon I could not tell you my love until I had confessed first that I was the author of the letters which wounded you so deeply."

"I am ashamed of me that last humiliation. I can never forgive myself for being happy in your company or for spinning the hand stretched out to lift me from this degradation."

"Squire Hawkins," I said in bitterness.

"Yes, Squire Hawkins, whom you would have counted as you have us. And to think that just because I was worthy to him I believed myself unworthy of you!" she added in cutting tones, "for I must go to prepare your dinner. I suppose there will be one less to provide for tomorrow."

She started to leave the room, but I stood in front of her.

"No, I will not go. You do not understand. It was with love welling in my heart that I wrote that last letter. I had been ordered home, and I wrote that letter that I might stay another fortnight. After you had promised to be my wife I would have told you all, and together we would have read it, and in the richness of the future we would have laughed over it together. No, I will not go. I will stay and tell Bud and the colonel. They will understand and plead for me. And if you love me—"

"If I ever did you killed it the moment you confessed to have written so much of my love to me. In the silence that followed I suffered a lifetime of ordinary humiliation. To be unknown and yet pronounced was like being alone with my profession. My identity should be hid no longer, and I resolved to tell her that it was I who had dejected. As low as I was in the moment, I was not so low as to take her hand until she had confessed all. The past month rose before me, and I asked myself if I was indeed a gentleman measured from their standpoint. At any rate, I could not remain one and be silent."

entered the dining room together. Miss Ellen came in late, for it would have been unlike her to have stayed away. In a perfectly natural voice she told them I had been called away. Bud begged me to stay, and the colonel and Mrs. Turpin made me promise to come again. That night was a dismal one. Miss Ellen would not play and soon went to her room. I left the next morning. Bud remonstrated with me to drive me to the station. Miss Ellen bade me farewell in the hall, but avoided taking my hand. As the wagon turned into the cedars I looked back, and only the colonel and Mrs. Turpin were standing on the porch to wave me a farewell. I hardly spoke to Bud on the way, but I made him promise that if any one should get ill at the Pines he would write to me at once. At the station I found a letter from the managing editor telling me that my last contribution was the clearest bit of writing I had ever done and that the paper had advertised another one for the following Sunday.

I tore his letter into fragments and, going to the telegraph office, wrote out the following telegram and sent it: "Accept my resignation. I will leave for the west on the next train." I grasped Bud's hand, but was unable to speak a word. I boarded the train and sat for hours, my head resting on my hands. The my face turned toward the Pines, my soul full of sadness, with not a ray of sunlight in my heart.

Porto Rico's New Wonder.

From far away Porto Rico come reports of a wonderful new discovery that is believed will vastly benefit the people. Ramon T. Marchan, of Barcelona, writes "Dr. King's new discovery is doing splendid work here. It cured me about five times of terrible coughs and colds, also my brother of a severe cold in his chest and more than 20 others, who used on my advice. We hope this great medicine will yet be sold in every drug store in Porto Rico." Fast throat and lung trouble it has no equal. Trial will convince you of its merit. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free. HEALTH OFFICERS

To Fight Hookworm in Jefferson County—Fiscal Court Appropriates $500.

War will be made on the hookworm in Jefferson county outside of Louisville beginning next week under the direction of Dr. W. W. Richmond, of the State Board of Health, and Dr. B. W. Snook, of the County Board of Health. For the extinction of this deadly parasite the Fiscal Court at its session Monday afternoon, appropriated $500 to begin the work, and if more is necessary the court will see that it is furnished, it is said. It is estimated by Dr. Richmond that it will take between $800 and $1,000 for incidentals in connection with the campaign against the disease. Dr. Richmond's salary is paid by John D. Rockefeller, who has furnished the Kentucky State Board of Health $20,000 for the purpose of ridding the State of hookworm, and it is claimed a number of assistants are required to handle the work.

Flagged Train with Shift.

Tearing his shirt from his back an Ohio man flagged a train and saved it from a wreck, but H. T. Alsten, Raleigh, N. C., once prevented a wreck with Electric Bitters. "I was in a terrible pinch when I began to use them," he writes, "my stomach, head, back and kidneys were all badly affected and my liver was in bad condition, but four bottles of Electric Bitters made me feel like a new man." A trial will convince you of their matchless merit for any stomach, liver or kidney trouble. Price 50 cents at all druggists.—(Advertisement.)

Playing the Game

The man was going to get married. He had sworn his wild oats, and now he wanted to settle down. Well off, good looking, a first-rate sportsman, a favorite with men and women alike, the Pates splashing busily had smiled upon him at birth and had woven only gold threads in the web of his life.

For years he had lived the life of the smart young man about town. He had done the same thing in the usual way, he had been neither very good nor bad; in his own words, the favorite words of British youth, he had always "tried to play the game."

It was because he felt it incumbent upon him to play the game that he decided to tell the woman he was going to marry of a certain newly closed episode in his life. The consideration that perhaps it would be as well for her to hear the tale from him firsthand, instead of embroidered with lies on a foundation of truth, as she might hear it from some one else, may have counted for something, too.

But the reason he gave himself as he knotted his tie carefully before the mirror on the fateful morning of confession was that he "must play the game."

"I hardly know how to tell you, dear," he began awkwardly, standing tall and perfectly groomed on the hearthrug that afternoon. It's so difficult to speak to women, pure women, like you—about certain things, but the fact of the matter is, I've been an awful royer, Evelyn, and I feel it's up to me to own it. You're not marrying a saint, you know."

The fair-haired woman in the big blue armchair looked up at him sweetly out of innocent blue eyes. "Dear, I do know," she said gently.

He moved uncomfortably. "But it's just what you don't know," he told her, "that I'm worrying about. I'm not thinking of cards and racing, and things like that. It's about women I want to speak to you. Especially one woman." He paused, and bit his lip nervously.

"Ah!" said the woman softly, looking down.

"She was a nice little thing," went on the man. "Not quite a lady, you know, but very pretty and all that. Her father drank. She ran away from home. Hadn't a friend in the world when I picked her up. Only the streets in front of her. A good woman like you, Evelyn, can't realize what the horror of that means. . . . I took a flat for her."

"Ah!" said the woman softly, looking down.

"I lived with her more or less for three years," went on the man, gathering courage from her passiveness. "She was very grateful for all I had done for her; she was really quite a nice little thing. But, of course, that's all over and done with now. I settled up finally with her today. I shall never see her again. There was no reason for you ever to know, Evelyn, only that I felt it wouldn't be quite playing the game not to tell you."

"What has become of the girl?" asked the woman, still softly and still looking down.

The man shrugged his shoulders. "Still in the flat, I presume," he said carelessly. "The rent is paid up till December." His voice became persuasive. He bent down so that his face was very near the collar of fair hair wound smoothly round her head. "Don't let's talk about her any more," he urged. "It's all finished and done with. Now, don't frown, but just kiss me, and say you forgive me."

"You're a very naughty boy, Jack," said the woman reprovingly, but she let him wind her smooth white arms round his neck, as he knelt beside her on the floor. "Then if you promise never, never to do it again, I'll forgive you," she said, gently.

He caught her, flushed and smiling to him fiercely. "My saint!" he breathed upon her mouth.

In a daintily furnished room of a little flat in Queen's Club Gardens, a woman lay dead upon the bed with an empty phial in her hand. There were traces of tears upon her white, cold cheeks; her closed eyelids were swollen. Her lover had fallen her. There nothing before her but the streets.

So she, too, had "played the game." God will decide who played it best.

Bunty Pulls The Strings.

That Louisville theatregoers are unusually anxious to see Grahe Mofat's famous play, "Bunty Pulls The Strings," is indicated by the heavy advance sale. "Bunty" will be at the Shubert Masonic Theatre for the entire week of Nov. 18, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Theatre goes takes to "Bunty" as naturally as a duck takes to water. Two years ago the play was produced in London, at the Haymarket theatre. The Scotch comedy is still running in the British capital, and the indications are that its run will continue for another year at least. After "Bunty" had scored such a smashing triumph in London, Mr. William A. Brady secured the American rights and produced the play in New York. Eng-Shoeling through Scotland and England, and the author, Mr. Mofat, gathered together a notable company of players for the American production. The company was recruited mostly in Glasgow, Edinburgh and London.

"Bunty Pulls The Strings" began its New York career about a year and a half ago. Little or nothing was known of the play, except that London liked it. There was on hand the usual jaded, first night audience of New Yorkers. "Bunty" surprised them out of themselves into sheer delight. Before the evening was half over the skepticism of the audience had all vanished. They were roaring with laughter and applauding like mad. By the end of the next day there was an advance sale took every seat in the house, Collier's Comedy Theatre, for more than a week in advance. From day to day the advance sale grew and grew. People stood in lines all day—lines over a block long, waiting their turn to buy seats for future performances of "Bunty Pulls The Strings." Within a week the advance sale for the following eight weeks had been disposed of.

Since that first performance in New York, something over 6,000,000 New Yorkers have seen "Bunty Pulls The Strings." When it was seen that the New York run of the play would last many months, Mr. Brady gathered together a second all-Scotch company for Chicago. The Chicago run of the play, lasting more than six months, was a repetition of what had gone before in London and New York. And now that "Bunty" is on the road, the same thing is happening in the less populous cities. The advance mail order sale is now in progress and orders for seats when accompanied by check or money order are filled in the order of receipt. All checks should be made payable to the Shubert Masonic Theatre and letters addressed to John J. Garrity, Manager.

Valuable Horses Lost by Fire.

J. L. Simcoe, of Buchel, was a great sufferer from the burning of Richard Shultz's Riding Academy near Louisville Tuesday night. He lost the following registered saddle horses:

Mares, Gem, 5 years old, by Chester Dare out of Fashion Dare.

Prince, 5 years old, full sister to above.

Fizzle, 4 years old, by Fitzcandra. Gaits Kill, a two year old stud, by Golden King, dam Bell Red Chief by Bourbon Chief.

Bald Chief, 2 year old stud, by Golden King, out of Jane S, by Chester Dare.

Eldred Chief by Emerald Chief, out of Wilson's King, was stabled at same place, but had been taken to the city the night of the fire and escaped.

Fine Stock Changes Hands.

L. J. Dorsey, Anchorage, sold to Dr. J. E. Harris, Marshall, Mo., the bay Morgan filly (three years old) "Gold Princess" by "Goldheer," dam by "Hamlet Goldstud." He sold to some party last year a filly by Goldheer that was a winner wherever exhibited the best season, and Gold Princess was bought to mate her.

L. J. Dorsey, The Highlands Farm, has purchased the standard bred Morgan mare "Trixy B." (sister to Griffin 2184) by Goldal, dam, Jota (dam of Pantomime 2171 and Griffin 2184) and her chestnut weanling filly by Oakland Boy 2121. She will be bred in the spring to his grand prize winner, Morgan stallion, Gold-set Abdallah—Farmers Home Journal.

Remembers the Printers.

J. C. Bruce, besides being an expert road builder and other things, is somewhat of a farmer. And he remembers The Jeffersonian's bunch of printers, too. The force, especially the girls, are kept in good shape at all times. Last week he brought up several large turnips, about as fine as we ever saw. If there were no more men like Mr. Bruce we would not have to go hungry this winter.

CHILD WELFARE EXHIBIT AND CONFERENCE AT LOUISVILLE
NOVEMBER 21-30.

TO BE HELD IN BIG ARMORY

For The Redemption of the Young of the Present Generation and Future Generations Great Meeting
Will be Held.

The Kentucky Child Welfare Conference and Exhibit, designed for the ultimate redemption of the children of Kentucky, even until the third and fourth generations and primarily designed for the reclamation of the children of the present generation, will be held in the commodious First Regiment Armory in Louisville, November 21-30. The exhibit proper will be in session ten days. The conference will be in session three days, November 25-27 and the conference will be held in the Warren Memorial Presbyterian Church, corner Fourth and Broadway, one of the most convenient meeting places in Louisville.

That the child is father to the man is the belief of those back of the Child Welfare Exhibit, and to give the child at least an even break for health, life

For many days in the life of the child, the child is father to the man. The child is father to the man. The child is father to the man.

THIS LITTLE PIG

- This little child made Irish lace
- This little child made flowers
- This little child made yellow plumes
- This one held poetry for hours

And all of them worked as close as nails
And the great bright summer hours

erty and pursuit of happiness its aim. The purpose of the exhibit will be shown "What we are doing for children; what we are not doing for children; what we ought to do for children."

The Kentucky Child Welfare Exhibit organization has been in existence since last January, but its work has been so unostentatious, so quiet, so unobtrusive that few realize its magnitude and scope. Beginning the night of November 21 at 8 o'clock and lasting ten days the public will have an opportunity to judge of the vastness of the undertaking. The exhibit will be held at the armory and will be open daily from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night with the exception of Sunday and Thanksgiving day, when it will open at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and remain open until 10 o'clock at night.

Scope Comprehensive.

Everything that relates to the child, and through the child to the parent, will be dealt with. To epitomize the exhibit it will consist of screens, moving pictures, live exhibits, model dairy, model temperance, fine clinics, model dining-room and kitchen, dirty and clean barn, model playground, demonstration of the work done at the School for the Blind and the Babies Milk Fund will have a booth which will be in charge of a trained nurse. Where mothers can leave their babies and where fresh pure milk will be provided.

The conditions and needs of Kentucky children will be shown in the following sections: Health, schools, the child and the law, settlements and educational movement, recreation, industrial conditions, moral and religious life, country life and schools, philanthropy and homes.

Five hundred volunteer "explainers" working in four-hour shifts will be well drilled in the particular branch they are to elucidate and will give any information desired.

The officers of the Kentucky Child Welfare Exhibit are: Mrs. Morris Belk, president; Mrs. Alfred Brandies, first vice president; Miss Elizabeth Walsh, second vice president; Mrs. L. W. Thompson, secretary; Dr. Anna Louis Strong, director; Miss Adele Brandies, assistant director.

Various committees and subcommittees have been working in their departments and the results already accomplished have been extremely gratifying to those in charge.

Much Detail Involved.

The tremendous amount of detail work attached to such a stupendous undertaking can be grasped only faintly by a visit to the headquarters in the Armory. The only handicap thus far encountered is the very serious one of money. The New York Child Welfare Exhibit shows cost $100,000 and were visited by 250,000. The screens used there were used in Chicago, and in addition $50,000 was expended. Their efforts were awarded by an attendance of 410,000. Exhibits have been held in Kansas City and Northampton, Mass. and are to be held in St. Louis and Montreal. Then Kentucky Child Welfare Exhibit has secured nearly $4,000 so far, but much more is needed. Donations may be sent to the Kentucky Child Welfare Exhibit at the Armory.

The Child Welfare Exhibit has been accorded the hearty co-operation of the Board of Health, Board of Tuberculosis Hospital, various charity organizations and the churches. Statistics have been looked up, information of technical character furnished, reports on local conditions in various branches have been submitted and tabulated after being verified. The various committees total 230 men and women. But, as is usually the case where committees are appointed, a few active spirits do the work and the others come strong on the suggestion end. That the workers, the real workers, have been unremitting in their efforts is shown by the splendid results achieved.

CHILDREN TO ENTERTAIN

Choruses of school children, folk dancing and gymnastic exhibitions, kindergarten and folk-games, drills and athletic contests by the Boy Scouts, Y. M. C. A., Y. M. H. A., the Turners, and many other organizations, will take place in the Central Court every afternoon and evening except Sunday. Free moving pictures on Child Welfare will be given afternoon and evening.

On Friday evening and Saturday afternoon, November 22-23, the Historical Pageant given in Central Park in May, 1911, will be repeated.

The directors and managers of the Louisville Exhibit have been preparing for their great task since the National Child Labor Association held its annual convention in Louisville last January. The enthusiasm and inspiration aroused at that time has been productive of such excellent results that Dr. Strong unhesitatingly asserts that the Louisville Exhibit will be the most enjoyable and successful in the history of the entire movement. She has secured the services of 500 young Louisville girls who are studying their various parts and will devote their full time during the week of the exhibit to explaining the various exhibits and giving information and guidance to visitors.

GREAT SCHOOL CONVENTION.

In connection with the Kentucky Child Welfare Conference and Exhibit, two other notable conventions will be held in Louisville: the Child Welfare Conference proper will be held November 25th and the Exhibit will continue until November 30th. The Southern Educational Association will hold its annual convention at Louisville, beginning November 28th and continuing three days. It is expected that one thousand southern teachers will attend this convention. Mrs. Charles C. Weaver, of Louisville, has taken advantage of the Southern Educational Association and of the Child Welfare Conference, which will be in progress at that time, to call a convention of school improvement workers, the first ever held in the world.
